most tender one should not be troubled with a woman who they might injure. Therefore, our little friend will have a visit from Santa, of course, but he will be remembered with some other less troublesome presents.
The kiddies ask for all sorts of gifts at Christmas. One boy, with notions for the advancement of his years, wishes a flying machine. "One that I can go riding in with my little dog." Of course he is to have a real Christmas morning when he will be able to find an airplane outside the door of his home. However, the majority of the letters that come to the Santa Claus editor contain only modest requests, and the committee endeavors to fulfill as nearly as possible the hopes of the young folks who send their appeals to Santa through The Argus. Where a child asks for something that is out of reason the committee exercises its own judgment in providing the next thing that it believes will satisfy the petitioner.

The committee the past few days has had calls from persons desiring the names of poor children to whom they personally wish to play Santa Claus. Others have inquired to know whether the committee has altered its plan of taking care of the poor children of the city, citing that in previous years it was optional with the good fellow whether he should contribute money or obtain names and personally provide the gifts to the little folks. In former years many people found great delight in stealing around to homes of the poor in the city and leaving gifts for the kiddies. In some cases Christmas trees fully decorated and drooping with gifts, were supplied. But the committee found that, while the majority of those to whom names were supplied, fulfilled their promises, there were others who failed to do so. This situation has caused the committee to be more cautious in giving out names.
Where the committee is satisfied that the one asking for names will do as he promises the request is granted, and he will be remembered that it is glad to have such cooperation from persons who can be relied upon to carry out their part of the contract. However, where the committee has any reason for doubt, requests are refused. It is not believed that any person would persistently deny a child a happy Christmas, but we are all prone to forget, and in the rush of the holiday people who had weeks before been moved by a desire to do the handsome by some poor kiddies simply had mislaid the names and addresses, and let the matter drop from their minds, with consequent grief to the hearts of those to whom they had agreed to play Santa Claus.

Where names are furnished others the task before the committee is correspondingly lessened, but the Santa Claus enterprise is obligated to childhood, to those who must look to others to cheer them at Christmas, and it is for this reason that the committee has been hesitant about promiscuously distributing out names. If you are a good fellow who wants to play Santa Claus to some poor kids, and you can furnish proper credentials to the committee, you will be supplied all the names you ask for. If you can't furnish the credentials, don't ask for names, because you won't get them. The Santa Claus committee would be false to its trust were it to pass to others who might not perform their duty names on the promise that it will supply Christmas gifts to every poor child of little folks who have put their faith in The Argus Santa Claus.

The Santa Claus fund is all about it, what it should be. At present it is maintained by the committee. Either mail check or leave your contribution at the business office of The Argus.
